DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This 2-story duplex residence boasts an atypical gambrel roof wing. The shingle roof, common bond brick facade, and random-laid stone foundation complement and reinforce each other. Symmetrical fenestration, proportionally scaled, punctuated the facade. The rectangular windows, accented by brick header sills, are double hung with 1/1 lights in the 1st story and 6/6 lights in the 2nd.

Four concrete steps lead to the pedimented porch. Six wooden, square supports (4 in front, 2 in the rear) hold the shingle and asbestos siding roof. The entire porch is enclosed by a diamond pattern railing.

Beneath the roof, a "Phony-Colonial" screen door with a scalloped upper section hides the front door. The window on the right is accented by a brick stretcher lintel. The right end bay holds an identical window with louvered shutters.

The 3rd story windows meet the brick corbelling underlining the roof. A brick chimney with molding saddles the roof and is shared in common with the adjoining house.

A single window with louvered shutters fills the front gambrelled wing facade. In the first floor of the side facade is a bipartite window grouping accented by brick stretcher lintels and shutters. A wood mullion separates each section. Another bipartite grouping in the 2nd floor is enframed by wood and capped by a brick header segmental arch. Attic ventilation is obtained by a Greek cross opening below the apex of the roof.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The gambrell roof sections are unusual additions to what would otherwise be typical duplex residences in Ashburton. The style is common along Dolfield Avenue and in southern Ashburton, where they become small rowhouse units.
